

Supporting Multicultural Children and Youth

Project ECHO network

Aim: To create a cross-sector community of practice dedicated to improving health outcomes and educational engagement for children and youth from migrant and refugee backgrounds, and people seeking asylum. This ECHO discusses the connection between culture, language and wellbeing.

Join this free, interprofessional community of practice led:

Dr Alison Harris – Developmental Paediatrician, Children's Health Queensland

Belinda Khong – Multicultural Mental Health Coordinator, CHQ

Kelsa Laughlin – Clinical Nurse, Centre for Children's Health and Wellbeing, CHQ

Amiel Nubaha – Refugee Health Consultant, Mater Refugee Health Advisory Group (G11)

Jacki Howlett – Head of Student Services, Milpera State High School

Colleagues from education, health, and human service sectors working with young people of primary and/or secondary school age are warmly invited to participate.

Sessions include a case discussion, and brief presentation on a topic identified by the group as a priority learning need.

4th Thursday of the month, 8-9am

27th April – 23rd November 2023
